FINANCIAL AID AT CORNELL UNIVERSITY

INFORMATION in this booklet applies only to the undergraduate divisions of Cornell University in Ithaca; separate publications are available for students interested in the Medical College or the Cornell University-New York Hospital School of Nursing in New York City.¹ Fellowships and other forms of assistance available to graduate students are listed in the Announcement of the Graduate School.

This booklet is issued for the guidance of two groups: prospective students, their parents, and counselors; and students already in residence. Correspondence from and concerning prospective students should be addressed to the Director of Admissions, Edmund Ezra Day Hall, unless specific directions to the contrary are given in the following pages. Students in residence should consult the Office of Dean of Men and Dean of Women in Edmund Ezra Day Hall, unless some other procedure is definitely prescribed.

SCHOLARSHIPS AND GRANTS-IN-AID

Many of the scholarships open to freshmen are awarded on the basis of competitive examinations. Prospective students should, therefore, study this booklet early in the final year of secondary school, in order to be certain that their applications are on file at the proper time and that they make the necessary arrangements to take the required tests. No award to a prospective student is considered final until he has been accepted for admission and has begun his studies. The applicant should, therefore, be careful to follow every prescribed step in the procedure outlined in the General Information booklet for admission to the school or college of the University in which he desires to enroll.

As indicated in the following pages, some scholarships and grants are open to all students in all divisions of the University. Others are limited to students in particular schools or colleges; to men or women only; to students who have attained sophomore, junior, or senior standing; to persons from specified geographic areas; and even, in a few instances, to special racial groups, such as Chinese or American Indians. In all cases, preference is given to matriculated students unless the award is specifically designated as a freshman scholarship. Transfer students cannot compete for freshman scholarships but are eligible for the other awards after being in residence at Cornell for at least one semester. The donors of a large number of the available funds have placed emphasis on financial need as well as academic achievement. Every applicant should therefore study the entire booklet carefully to determine what qualifications are demanded before submitting an application for a scholarship or grant. The deadline for applications is May 10, unless otherwise specified.

LOANS

Students who have successfully completed at least two terms in the University are eligible to apply for loans (see page 47).

PRIZES

Numerous prizes and special awards for achievement are listed in the pamphlet, Prize Competitions, which may be obtained at the Office of the Dean of Men and Dean of Women in Edmund Ezra Day Hall, or by writing to Cornell University Official Publication, Edmund Ezra Day Hall, Ithaca, N.Y.

EMPLOYMENT

Many Cornell students augment their financial resources by seeking part-time employment during the academic year. Assistance in securing this type of work, as well as summer employment, is provided by the University through the Office of Dean of Men and Dean of Women. For details, see the General Information booklet.

The following scholarships and grants-in-aid are awarded, on application, to students in need of financial aid who give evidence of being worthy recipients by virtue of satisfactory academic achievement and good character.

Awards from each scholarship are made after consideration of the donor's statement of qualifications and wishes with respect to the purpose of the grant.

As the number of candidates for scholarship assistance is large, the scholarships are frequently divided. Except when definitely specified, the awards go to upperclassmen who have proved their merit, need, and character rather than to freshmen or other new students.

The scholarships are payable in two installments, and when awarded for the academic year their continuance in the second semester is contingent upon satisfactory performance during the first.

LOANS

Loans to promising students in need of assistance have been made possible by many gifts to the University. It is a general policy to grant such loans only to students who have completed at least two terms at Cornell.

The student in need of assistance should apply first to the dean or director of the school or college in which he is enrolled. If funds are not available from that source, he may apply for aid from one of the general loan funds through the Office of Dean of Men and Dean of Women.

Approval of requests for loans is based on such factors as financial need, personal reliability, and academic progress.

Money borrowed from Endowment or University funds is to be repaid with interest at 4 per cent. Said interest starts when the student leaves Cornell, unless otherwise provided by the terms of the Endowment, at a time agreed upon between the borrower and the Treasurer. The borrower gives a note as security; collateral security is not required. The University has adopted certain rules which experience has shown to be necessary to ensure that these funds shall accomplish a maximum of effectual help to deserving students. These rules impose certain restrictions upon the Committee's disposition of the funds. Among the restrictions are these:

1. A student is eligible to borrow from this source only after maintaining a satisfactory standing in classes and in other respects during a residence of at least one year in the University.

2. A loan is not ordinarily made to enable a student to meet the expenses of the Summer Session.

3. A student cannot borrow more than $300 in any one year and not more than $600 during his or her time in residence.

Applications and detailed information are available in the Office of Dean of Men in Edmund Ezra Day Hall.
